Titel	A Good Orthodontist NEEDS a Good Prosthodontist. – The importance of Teamwork
Abstract	I have no doubt that the future of orthodontics is working in a team environment. With the increased number of adults that are now coming into our practices it is absolutely indispensable to work hand in hand with periodontists, prosthodontists, implantologists and surgeons. In order to reach excellence in our finished cases we need the help of other specialists. Adults when compared with children present problems that an orthodontist can no longer treat with orthodontics alone. We see periodontal disease, missing teeth, bite collapse, TMJ problems and severe skeletal problems. These examples alone amplify the need to work in an interdisciplinary environment. I will show many cases where periodontal patients are treated with orthodontics and periodontics, severely mutilated cases are treated with orthodontics, periodontics, implants and prosthodontics and we will see cases treated with orthodontics, prosthodontics and orthognathic surgery.
